TL/DR? Came here looking for another shooter and I got a new take on Ikaruga split across 2 screens, blew my brain! Granted, the game may need some more weapons and enemies but the devs have promised to add them. Update after update so far they have been delivering. Visually the game is stunning. I have yet to try the co-op so I can't comment on that.. I'm a big fan of "bad physics" games, and of danmaku games, and this one's an amazing mashup of the two. Truly brain-breaking good fun.. Switching from one screen to the other to kill more enemies, to reach closed areas, to collect more powerups makes you feel like pro when you are in the zone. Then you switch again and crash against the environment resulting in an instant death. But you try again, because of course you must try again, you are not a quitter. Now, you have a new plan of attack, a new path, new places to switch, this time you will succeed. You are nailing it, enemies on both sides are obliterated as you switch frantically and show up in their face to point blank them. This time you are going to beat the level, you reach the end boss of the level but this time you know his attack patterns. You switch, reverse, you shoot the cores and its almost dead. You got this. Then you switch in a bad moment, you know you are going to die before it happens, its your fault, you knew that bastard was going to shoot that giant laser and you are just there to take it in your face again resulting in an instant death. But you try again, because this game is not going to make you quit, its you against the game and you are not a quitter. Summary: You will try again, and again, and again and you will love it.. Wow! Changing dimension is the perfect mechanic for a shootemup. It starts easy but then both screens gets crowded of enemies and bullets and jumping from one screen to the other is challenging and demands total focus. It's a refreshing way to use my skills. For the genre, this game is long enough (13 levels, but I needed to repeat some of them :P) and the replay value is very high (thanks to the innovative core mechanic and lots of new modes).. Incredibly fun game, brings back that much needed bullet hell arcade feeling you used to have with areofighters and improves it with a new mechanic, incredibly fun 100% reccommended. Uninspired bland game. Great space invader/ side scroller kind of game. Highly recommended for 2 players due to the teleport mechanic. Would be great if it includes 4 player local play. Needs more content. Highly priced at the moment.
